TEST VALIDITY OF BUILDING LINE

Case Pending in Virginia Supreme Court Involves Important Questions.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals will adjourn to-day in honor of the birthday of General Robert E. Lee. The next case in call to be argued on Thursday morning, is that of Eubank against the city of Richmond. The case involves the validity of the recently adopted building line ordinance, and its outcome in the appellate court will be watched with interest.

The ordinance was drawn by City Attorney Pollard in conformity with an act of the Legislature of 1908, giving to cities certain specific powers, and it is the validity of that act that is called into question.

Under the terms of the ordinance, two-thirds of the property owners on any one city block may petition the Street Committee to fix a building line a fixed distance back from the curb. Should such a line be established by the Street Committee, it is certified to the office of the Building Inspector, and it is thereafter unlawful for that official to grant a permit to any one to erect a house on that block not in conformity with the line established.

The law was the outgrowth of property owners in the neighborhood of Fifth and Grace Streets to prevent the erection of stores on that corner. The Eubank case, which is to be made a test, is where permission was refused for the erection of a house on East Grace Street, near Twenty-eighth, the bay window of which would have projected in front of the building line established.

The Supreme Court heard the following cases yesterday: Southern Railway Company vs. Bailey. Argued by R. B. Tunstall and O. V. Shackelford, for plaintiff in error, and A. T. Browning and E. H. De-Jarnett, Jr., for defendant in error, and submitted. Nottingham et al. vs. Ackiss, assignee, et al. Argued by Judge Burroughs, for plaintiff in error, and Wm. McK. Woodhouse, for defendants in error, and submitted.

Next cases to be called: Eubank vs. City of Richmond; Riddick vs. City of Newport News; Templeton's Administrator vs. Lynchburg Traction and Light Co.; Washington, Alexandria and Mr. Vernon Railway Company vs. Trimyer, Security Loan and Trust Company vs. Fields, and Southern Railway Company vs. Lewis, being Nos. 45, 47, 49 to 53, inclusive, on argument docket.

Minister Taken Suddenly Ill. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Winchester, Va., January 18.—Rev. J. W. Duffy, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, this city, and

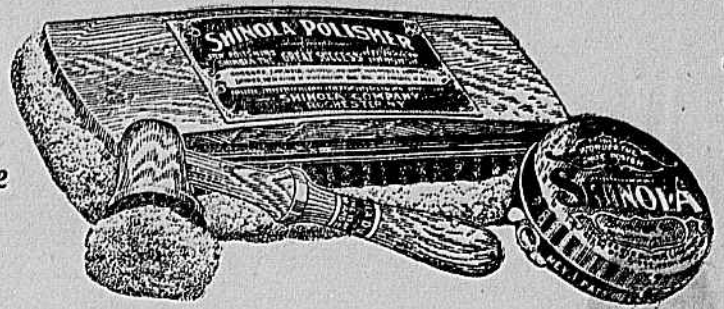

and one of the most prominent members of the Baltimore Conference, was taken suddenly ill yesterday. Only heroic measures saved his life. His condition is improving to-day.

Negroes Charged With Murder. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Wadesboro, January 18.—The grand jury here returned a true bill to-day, charging Claude Little and James Smith with the murder of Cora Allen, near Ansonville, December 21. The motive for the crime is still a mystery. Smith shot the woman to death without any apparent cause. All are negroes.
